Byron Calhoun Is Cone Mills Club Pres.

Byron Calhoun, of Cone Mills Main Office, was elected president of the Cone Mills Club for the coming year. Others elected by the club's board of directors at the annual meeting June 12 were Fred Ziprik, vice-president; Carolyn Smith, secretary; and Roy Yarborough, treasurer.

New board members installed were Ben Smith, Monroe Whitt, Jack Phillips, Howard Pickard, and Roy Yarborough.

Approximately 275 people attended the annual meeting which was highlighted by serving picnic supper to the big crowd.

Special contests were held in shuffleboard, horseshoes, ping pong and fishing. Prizes were won by Bill Thornburg and Joe Mitchell in shuffleboard; Ed Chambers and Bob Pegram in horseshoes; Wayburn James in ping pong; and the fishing prizes went to Melvin Fields and Joe Way.

An extra highlight for the evening was an outdoor bingo game led by Jim Fuller. This proved to be a most popular event and many participants won a variety of prizes. Mrs. George Nance won the big prize, a set of dishes.

The children were entertained with movies.

Textorian To Reprint Parts Of Cost Booklet

A booklet entitled, "How Much Does It Cost?" was published by Cone Mills Corporation several months ago (see Textorian, November 13, 1953). It has been suggested that The Textorian from time to time carry portions of it in order to give more people an opportunity to get an idea of the contents. Copies of this booklet are available in the offices of Cone plants, and they are free for the asking.

The purpose of "How Much Does It Cost?" is clearly stated in the foreword by President Herman Cone:

Herman Cone

"Many of our employees have become so accustomed to their daily work with the machinery they operate that I'm afraid very few of them realize how much money it will take to replace these machines when they wear out. In order to let you have some idea of the huge amount of money that this company will have to spend to keep its plants modern and efficient, we hope to bring some of these costs home to you clearly and simply by comparing them with prices of other things with which you are familiar."

From time to time during the next few months, The Textorian will reproduce one double page spread from the booklet showing the comparison of the replacement cost of a piece of textile machinery with a familiar everyday item.

Cone Representative Heads Council

Harvey Raymond of Cone Mills Inc., New York, was recently elected chairman of the Corduroy Council of America, which has offices at 15 East 53rd Street, New York.

Backers of the council represent approximately 95 per cent of the producers of finished corduroy in this country. Of the 18 participating firms, nine are offering prints as well as plains this season.

One nationally known manufacturer of underwear will use corduroy for the first time in this field, and a number of top lines in bedspreads and household accessories will include corduroy prints in their fall lines.

Over the past year the council has stressed through its membership, the importance of quality standards of construction and washability as well as the original aim which was "to help manufacturers in all trades and in all markets by promoting a greater use and acceptance of corduroy."

Don't Let It Happen Here

On Wednesday of this week the Greensboro Daily News carried the following account from Danville, Va.:

"Garland Haywood, 38, was fatally injured last night at Dan River Mills when a heavy bolt of cloth rolled on him and crushed his chest."

"No one saw the accident and its cause was being sought today. He was carried to the mill clinic where he died without being able to make any explanation of what had happened to him."

"The mishap broke a spectacular record for freedom from industrial accident at Dan River. Only a few weeks ago the National Safety Council awarded the mills a citation for having clocked three million man hours without accident."

"The victim, a native of Danville who is survived by his wife and two stepsons had been a mill employee since 1952."

BRAND NEW

AND READY TO ROLL . . .

PRICED AROUND $2,300

Everybody likes to ride in style. You could own a fleet of cars like the one below for the price of the Cone Mills sanforizer shown on the next page. How many would you say?

1 5 10 20

If you said ten, you were right. In addition, you could equip each of the ten with $200 worth of extras because the sanforizer below costs $25,000.

Cone Mills owns 22 of these machines. Keep in mind that they won't last forever but are constantly wearing out and will have to be replaced someday. It would take more than the cost of 239 cars like the one on the left to replace our 22 sanforizers.

No Clear Cut Decision Expected

By the time this paper comes from the press, the big show in Washington may be over. We are not hazarding a guess as to what the verdict will be in the Army-McCarthy tug of war but we would not be surprised to learn that the members of the committee will resolve that the participants are "both right and both wrong."

It is difficult to see how a clear-cut decision can come out of such a complicated "mess" even if party politics were not involved. The entire hearing contained many ingredients, including irrelevant statements, unsubstantiated charges and counter-charges, political maneuvering, unnecessary personal abuses, and the recitation of absurd trivialities.

Many times during the hearing it was difficult to determine what the whole thing was all about. There is no doubt but that perjury was committed and in no uncertain manner; however, it is realized that it would be extremely difficult to pin the "big lie" upon any individual and prove it beyond the shadow of a doubt.

It is less difficult to conclude that Senator McCarthy had attempted before and during the hearing to establish himself in the role of an unauthorized dictator in so far as investigations are concerned. The fact that he so persistently placed himself and his committee beyond the pale of restriction and subordination was not entirely his fault. Over the years there appears to have been a growing tendency for various individuals and committees to usurp powers not intended for them, and we have beheld manifestations of such a tendency not only with members of Congress but chief executives as well.

We feel a need not necessarily to create new rules separating the executive, legislative and judicial branches, but to redefine the rules and regulations which have emanated from the Constitution of the United States. However, if there remains any doubt that the Constitution does not properly provide for a separation of duties and responsibilities in the three branches, every step should be taken by legislation or otherwise to be sure that such a person as Senator McCarthy cannot invade the province of the executive branch of government. We feel this to be just as important now as when in the past a president of the United States assumed the right and privilege to usurp power that belonged to Congress and the courts.

To us, the Army-McCarthy hearing has had one beneficial result—it has demonstrated very clearly that McCarthy not only desires but practically demands the right to move into any field of government without restraint to conduct hearings without respect to proper conduct or rights of individuals and to defy the authority of others. It has been very apparent that he has trained his staff to assume a similar attitude. The people are now aware of that attitude, and we do not believe they will tolerate it.

On the other hand, it has been very apparent that representatives of the Army have not at all times been mature and careful in handling themselves and conducting their affairs, particularly in relationship to their dealings with McCarthy and his staff.

We deplore the fact that indiscretions on the part of representatives of the Army were most apparent. However, we do recognize the fact that they were to some extent trapped into situations which later proved to be embarrassing. No doubt they were not skilled enough in the type of maneuvering which is necessary when dealing with people possessing the characteristics of Senator McCarthy and some members of his staff. We know they have learned much and that both discretion and caution will be practiced by them in the future.

Without attempting to pass final judgment in the case, we will say that despite the fact that the Army's case was not complete or as logical as we had expected, we were and are firmly convinced that none of the principals representing the Army would deliberately testify falsely or interfere with a proper and constitutional method of ridding the Army of Communists, nor do we for one minute believe that representatives of the Army are not as vigorously opposed to communism as Senator McCarthy is himself. We further believe that their attitude and their efforts have been unselfish and patriotic in every respect and contained not one iota of selfishness or desire for personal gain, power or prestige. That is more than we can say for the Senator from Wisconsin and some of his associates.

On Thursday, June 10, only one game was played. Rayon won an easy victory over the Revolution Payroll 11 to 0. Even though the score seemed to be large, the Payroll team played a good game. Then Proximity scored two runs off 1 hit, a walk and one error to take the lead. It was in the bottom of the 7th that White Oak got its first hit and a walk to score and tie the game, two all. White Oak scored again in the bottom of the 9th on one hit, a walk and an error to win. Both pitchers, John Smith, for White Oak and Roy Jordan for Proximity gave up only three hits each. David Yow led the hitting for White Oak with 2 hits.

Health For All

Elementary, my dear Watson

In the 1890's, when the German scientist Robert Koch developed tuberculin, one of the distinguished foreigners who visited him to discuss his discovery was an English physician named Arthur Doyle. Yes—it was the creator of our old friend, Sherlock Holmes. The famous writer of detective stories was enthusiastic about this new substance which could detect tuberculosis germs in the human body. In a magazine article, he called it "a very important addition to the art of medicine."

Koch discovered that if he injected an extract of TB germs—tubercle bacilli—into the skin of animals, those who had been infected with the germs would soon develop raised red spots where the injection had been made. Others, who had not been exposed to tuberculosis, had no reaction.

By this simple means today we can find whether or not tuberculosis germs have entered the human body. The red bump that we call a tuberculin reaction does not mean that the person has tuberculosis. His body may have been able to overcome the invading germs, as in the case with most people who react to tuberculin. But the reaction does mean that he has been and someone who has the disease in an active form so that germs were passed on to him.

To the doctor a tuberculin reaction is a clue, just as a foot print was to Sherlock Holmes. Then the doctor can take precautions to see that the germs do not further damage. And he can track down the culprit, to see whether one of them may be spreading TB germs without even realizing that he has the disease.

FORTY-SEVEN YEARS SERVICE—William Henry Yates was born on a farm in Rowan County, December 4, 1886, the son of the late J. C. and Lundy Hill Yates. He moved to Salisbury in 1907 and went to work for the Salisbury Cotton Mills at the age of 21. Except for three months in 1913, when he worked for Cannon Mills, he has been regularly employed in the Card Room at the Salisbury Plant. "Will," as he is generally known, married Miss Mary Shives on December 23, 1909 and they have six sons, Morris, Glenn, Paul, Hayden, Wallace and Willard. All of the sons, except Morris, are employed at the Salisbury Plant. Mr. Yates is a member of Stallings Memorial Church.

Cotton Making News

Look for the banner headlines, ladies! Cotton is making news! All the members of this versatile family have come up with sparkling good reasons for the fact that cottons catch a woman's fancy when summer hits town.

There's a brand new look to poplin. There are exciting innovations in the use of border prints. There's a new twist to classic styling in budget-priced dobby weaves and baby cord outfits. And, since beauty is as beauty does, most of these handsome cottons bear the Sanforized label which means that shrinkage problems will never rear their ugly heads.

Pretty Poplins Popular

Poplin bursts into the summer sun in a bright blaze of lustrous colors. This year for the first time designers at William Simpson have styled an Everglaze poplin with a Sanforized label. This means subtle lustre, a fresh crispness, high resistance to wrinkles and no shrinkage worries. With such shining qualities, poplin covers the fashion circuit in everything from rugged sportswear to sleek sophisticates.

Pink poplin combines with the popular shirt-tail design for a serviceable casual outfit. It's a tailored shirt that didn't stop growing until the slit shirt-tail was long enough to make a skirt. The fly-front buttons upward from the waist into a convertible stove-pipe collar. You can wear it buttoned right up to the chin, or open at the throat with soft turn-back lapels. Push-up sleeves are cut in comfortable three-quarter length. The waist cinches in with a black patent belt, with skirt fullness distributed where ever your fancy, or your figure, dictates.

"Cat's Whiskers" is more than just a catchy name in a whistle-provoking red poplin separates outfit. Real cat's whisker trim made of two-inch lengths of self-cording is stitched in double rows around the scoop neckline of the blouse. More whiskers whirl in thick rows around the swooping circle skirt.

On the sportswear side, a flirty little romper suit turns yellow Everglaze poplin into a favorite for the young-in-heart-and-figure. The sleeveless shoulders are crossed with crisp white smocking on either side of the Peter Pan collar. Fullness below the smocking is belted into a minute-sized waistline, then flares into abbreviated bloomers. You'll love it for sun-wear all summer long, especially since the Sanforized label means it won't shrink out of fit.

Eyes are on the border this year, where bright things are happening.

WHERE THERE'S A WILL—Mrs. J. B. Gardner goes ahead working with the printing machine in the Engineering Department despite the fact that the pump which feeds the ammonia is broken. Two enterprising engineers rigged up two stools, and equipment box and some drafting tape. They were Ben Smith, Jr., and John McDermott, not shown.

Two groups of Sanforized border prints from Ameritex are especially apt to catch your eye. Red, green or black medallion-patterns are widely spaced against an uncluttered white ground. The border carries out the medallion color in solid and India-print designs.

Up-to-date editions of the border prints effectively puncture the tired tradition that borders must circle limply around the hemline and nowhere else. Designers are treating them with distinction and imagination. You'll see borders used to minimize a waistline, accent a bare shoulder, or camouflage an over-abundant hip.

Border detail accents the novel neckline of a one-shoulder dress made in striking red, gold and black Indian border print. The border interest is repeated again in an off-center stripe down the dirndl skirt.

Borders are used to effect a slimming line in a bathing suit designed by Carolyn Schnurer. The flared princess style shows off a white ground print with green medallion pattern and wide double borders. The double border runs smack down the suit on either side of a handy front zipper. This effects a solid slimming panel. The open print at the sides unobtrusively thins the waist and hipline curves. Who says high style has a corner on fashion news? Budget shops have plenty to offer the canny shopper. Clever detailing and interesting fabric style outfits to give big value for little price.

WEDS GRANITE MAN—Mrs. Howard A. Finley, above, was Miss Devereau Lou Field, prior to her marriage Saturday, June 5, in Greensboro. Mrs. Finley is a resident of Burlington where she is employed in the Life Insurance business. Mr. Finley, a native of Boston, Mass., is an engineer in the Granite Plant at Haw River. After their Florida honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Finley will be at home in Burlington.

A case in point is a classic blouse and skirt in brown cotton baby cord. It's made with an arrow-straight skirt and simple sleeveless blouse. The news is in a sharp sunburst inset of contrasting poplin spikes radiating out from the neckline under a matching poplin collar. Another worth-your-money factor is the Sanforized label which means these separates can be washed with no fear of shrinkage.

Light-weight dobby weave cotton, heavenly-cool for the dog days, gives distinction to a halter dress with bolero jacket, designed by Peg Palmer of St. Louis. The dress itself is classically simple, with slightly flared gored skirt and unadorned halter top. The jacket is cut with rounded notched lapels and turn-back cuffs on cap sleeves. Cuffs and lapels are lined in contrasting black. These simple lines serve to highlight the subtle texture of the fabric, with its tiny dobby pattern of black and white dots against a soft beige ground. All in all, it's an extremely adaptable all-occasion dress.

Eighty per cent of vehicles involved in fatal traffic accidents in 1953 were traveling straight ahead.
